FIRST DROUGHT CATTLE; FIRST CHECKS ARRIVE

75 Cattle are Unloaded at Shaws: Corn Checks are Received

The first consignment of drought relief cattle, purchased by the government from drought stricken farmers of Illinois, to reach Lee county was received at Shaw station yesterday afternoon. It consisted of 75 head of cattle purchased from drought stricken farmers in the vicinity of Rushville and the animals were taken to the Kenney farm. Another shipment of 35 head purchased from farmers in the neighborhood of Mt. Sterling, will be shipped to Lee county later.

The shipment yesterday contained many animals which had suffered from lack of forage. The cattle will be pastured on 100 acres of blue grass where they will remain until fatted and conditioned ready for slaughter. They will be then taken to Rockford where they will be slaughtered. Much of the meat will be cooked, and canned, while the remainder will be cut up and frozen to be sent back into Lee county to be supplied to relief clients.

The local IERC headquarters had started the work of collecting hogs throughout the county which were raised in excess of the hog contracts. It was estimated today that about 75 hog had been collected and these are being dealt out to families of relief clients.

First Corn Checks.

Seven relief families in one township in Lee county received a live hog this morning. Tomorrow is to be slaughtering day for all seven families and the hogs raised and fattened in Lee county will be provided to these clients. Indications today pointed to a dearth in the number of hogs to be turned back for relief purposes and it was stated that at the present outlook, there was an insufficient number to provide one hog for each family in the county on the relief rolls.

The first checks for Lee county farmers who have not raised hogs during the past summer, under the corn program, were received here yesterday, totalling about $8,000. The checks under the corn program of the AAA are expected to be received very soon and without further delay. The checks received late yesterday are to be distributed to the farmers before the end of this week, it was stated today.

Rooosevelt Considers Putting China on a Semi-Gold Standard

Washington, Oct. 17 —(AP)—The United States may help China put some gold in her silver standard.

This possibility arose today when it became known that the Roosevelt administration is looking into the wisdom of swapping some American gold for Chinese silver.

More notes between the two nations were made public. They antedated a recent exchange in which the state department told China that America could not abandon the objective of its silver-buying policy because that goal—25 per cent silver in the currency reserves—was set by Congress.

Kidnaper of Louisville Matron Believed to Be on His Way to Chicago

Mrs. Stoll Returned Home Last Evening; Abductor Known

BULLETIN

Chicago, Oct. 17—(AP)—Warned that the suspected Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., the suspected kidnaper of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, was bound for Chicago, the entire police force of the city and county was searching streets and highways for the car he was believed to be driving.

Provided with a description of the car, a Ford tudor with yellow wire wheels and license number 331-700, the police particularly scoured streets and highways leading from Indiana into the city.

Federal agents advised police that Robinson was believed to have driven from Indianapolis in the car and that as long ago as Sunday the suspect's father told them they might find his son in Chicago, they said.

The car in which Robinson is believed to have made his getaway from Indianapolis, where he had held Mrs. Stoll captive, was rented at the Mid-West Rent-a-Car Company here.

Robinson had known something about Chicago, the agents believed, since he once had been employed at the World's Fair.

BULLETIN

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 17—(AP)—As the federal government bent all its efforts today to find Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., named as the mad kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, Harold Nathan, department of justice investigator, announced that charges of conspiracy to violate the Lindbergh law probably would be pressed against Mrs. Robinson.

Hampered no longer by any danger to Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, federal agents meanwhile concentrated their efforts on running down Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., named as the mad kidnaper who took the society woman from her home here Wednesday for $50,000 ransom.

In Louisville, decision as to whether Robinson would face life imprisonment or of death hinged on a consultation to be held between U. S. District Attorney Thomas J. Sparks, and Commonwealth's Attorney Emmet O'Neal. Kentucky law provides death in the electric chair as the maximum punishment for kidnaping. The federal government, under the Lindbergh law, can go no further than life inmprisonment.

FREED LAST NIGHT

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 17 —(AP)—The relentless forces of the department of justice spread a net today for Thomas H. Robinson, Jr. 27-year-old Tennessean, accused of the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll.

The wealthy young society matron was bought home last night after a harrowing six days of captivity for a $50,000 ransom.

Robinson, former inmate of lunatic asylums, is named by federal agents as the man who entered the Stoll home Wednesday, slugged Mrs. Stoll with an iron pipe and carried her off to an Indianapolis apartment where she remained until yesterday.

The federal operatives believed Robinson fled the Louisville area in an automobile bearing Illinois license plates and a Chicago tag.

Investigators also are looking for the $50,000 ransom fund paid by Mrs. Stoll's husband, Berry V. Stoll oil company executive, for her release.

Hold Robinson's Wife

The investigators are holding Robinson's wife, who they said, picked up the $50,000 ransom package from her father-in-law — the intermediary— in Nashville. Mrs. Robinson was captured as she accompanied Mrs. Stoll from Indianapolis to Louisville yesterday in company with the Rev. E. Arnold Clegg and his wife, a cousin of Berry Stoll.

Mrs. Stoll was put to bed as soon as she arrived at her home last night. She was brutally treated at times during her imprisonment, but was said by a physician to be in fairly condition. The physician would not allow anyone to question her, with the result that details of her captivity are not known.

Federal men questioned Mrs. Robinson at a secret hiding place here to learn her knowledge of the kidnaping. Whether any charges will be lodged against her has not been determined.

Former Stoll Employe

Harold Nathan, in charge of the department of justice men in this area, said that Robinson, a college man, had formerly been employed by the Stoll Oil Refining Company, of which Berry Stoll is president.

The return of Mrs. Stoll was brought about through a chain of events starting with the delivery of the $50,000 ransom package Friday.

In compliance with the ransom note left by the kidnaper the money was sent by express to Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., father of the accused kidnaper. The father was named as intermediary in the first ransom note.

The money was delivered to Robinson's Nashville home by a fed-

Today's News of Kidnaping and Extortion Plots

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After six days in the hands of kidnapers Mrs. Alice Stoll, young Louisville society leader, was safe in her home today as a new kidnaping case was dropped in the lap of the law and department of justice agents revealed an extortion plot against Edsel Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, and Isaac Hoagland, a Chicago packing company official.

Federal agents announced they had arrested Edward Lickwala as the writer of the note received by Ford, only son of Henry Ford, threatening to kill him unless he paid $5,000. Department of justice agent said he confessed. An 18-year-old boy confessed the Chicago plot.

PIERPONT PAID PENALTY; KEPT SECRET TO END

"Brains" of the Dillinger Mob Executed Early in Ohio Prison

Columbus, O., Oct. 17—(AP)—Harry Pierpont, fair-haired "brains" of the dissolved Dillinger mob, was electrocuted at Ohio penitentiary early today—the first of the nomadic gang of robbers and killers to receive by legal process the full wages of crime.

Quietly, unaided and with the ghost of a smile on his lips, the 32-year-old killer sat down to death in the gaunt wooden chair within the high stockade of a prison guarded in unprecedented fashion, so fearful was Warden Preston E. Thomas of the zero hour possibility that the law might be frustrated.

Kept His Secret

With him into death, Pierpont carried the "inside story" of his break September 26, 1933, from the Michigan City, Ind. state prison.

From the ten felons that walked to liberty on that occasion, John Dillinger, himself an ex-convict from that institution, and Pierpont organized a machine-gun gang that etched a frightful chapter in the history of modern crime.

"I am the only man alive who knows the 'who's' and the 'how's' and xxx I'll take this little story with me on my last walk," Pierpont recently wrote Miss Jessie Levy, Indianapolis attorney who defended him.

That's what Pierpont did.

Had No "Last Word"

He was not asked for any "last word," as happens now and then at electrocutions, and he volunteered none. He just sat down with a rueful smile, closed his eyes, strained the muscles of his lanky, six-foot-two frame as the current struck, clenched one fist—that was all.

Pierpont died one year and four days after he, Charles Makley, 50, and Russell Clark, 33—all in the crew that escaped at Michigan City—walked into the office of Sheriff Jess Sarber at Lima, Ohio, and killed him to free Dillinger, held in the county jail there as the robber of a Bluffton, Ohio bank.

Slayer of Officer Granted New Trial

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 17—(AP)—A new trial for Arthur Lavac of Berwyn, who shot and killed two policemen in a controversy over his refusal to permit the vaccination of his children, was ordered today by the Illinois Supreme Court. Lavac's life sentence for the murder of Frank Svec, one of the policemen, was reversed and remanded.

Lavac had taken his children out of school because he would not let them be vaccinated for smallpox. A warrant, which the policemen were trying to serve, was then issued, charging him with contributing to the delinquency of the children.

EXTORTION PLOT AGAINST EDSEL FORD IS NIPPED

Detroit Youth Admits Writing Note Demanding Five Grand

Detroit, Oct. 17—(AP)— United States department of justice agents revealed today that they had frustrated an extortion plot against Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co., with the arrest of a 20-year-old youth who, they said, had confessed writing a letter demanding $5,000 under penalty of death.

The youth held is Edward Luckwala, who evaded a trap five days ago by failing to pick up a dummy package placed by Federal agents at the place designated in the letter, only to be arrested last night.

The note, mailed to Ford October 8, said "you are on the spot, and if you want to live it will cost you $5,000."

Gave Instructions

It gave detailed instructions for placing a candy box, containing the money in $5 and $10 bills, on a porch of a house in northeastern Detroit only a few doors from the address police said Lickwala gave when he was arrested for tampering with automobiles.

William Larsen, head of the department of justice bureau here, said a dummy package was placed on the designated porch at the time stated in the letter, 11 P. M. October 12, but that it was picked up by Mrs. Claude Landerville, occupant of the lower flat in the building. She was detained, but quickly established innocence and was released.

Watch Brother-in-Law

Larsen said the agents then questioned Joe Barnhart, occupant of the second story flat, and found he was a brother-in-law of Lickwala, who had a police record and who, police said, attempted to jump from the Belle Isle bridge into the Detroit river last July.

Federal agents kept the house under surveillance, until Lickwala last night walked up to one of the Federal men and said he had information which would help them.

He was arrested, Larsen said, when specimens of his handwriting proved identical with the writing of the extortion note. He soon confessed.

"I never meant to kill him," Lickwala was quoted as saying. "I just wanted to scare him. He's got lots of money and I wanted some of it."

King Alexander's Life Forfeited to Royal Vanity

(By CHARLES M. MEISTER)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Belgrade, Oct. 17 —(AP)— King Alexander of Yugoslacia lost his life because he failed to wear his bullet-proof vest.

The king, assassinated last week in Marseille owned two bullet proof vests. He had intended to wear one of them in France as he had done a month before on a visit to Bulgaria.

But when he went ashore from the cruiser Dubrovnik at Marseilles an admiral's uniform was his garb. The Associated Press learned tonight that he put on the bullet-proof vest, then found the admiral's uniform-tunic would not fit properly over the coat of mail.

He removed the vest at the last moment and went ashore with a perfectly fitting uniform but without the protection he had planned.

Previously he had worn his bullet-proof protection only under tunics of his army uniforms.

Experts told the Associated Press that had he worn his protective vest at Marseilles he would have lived, since none of the assassin's bullets struck him in the head and the vest was sufficiently strong to have deflected those which ripped into his body.

EX-HUSBAND OF MOST BEAUTIFUL KILLER IS HELD

Albert Annan Questioned About Bizarre Murder of Woman

Chicago, Oct. 17—(AP)—Albert Annan, 49, once husband of Beulah Annan who was known in 1924 as "Cook county's most beautiful slayer", was himself questioned today concerning the killing of a woman.

City police grilled him about the bizarre death of Mrs. Otila Griffin, 45, whose nude body was found in an apartment where Nannan was listening to the radio.

He also was questioned by Federal agents about two curious messages he had received about the progress of the kidnaping of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, Louisville society woman who was returned yesterday to her home.

Played Bloody Record

In 1924 police burst into an apartment and found Mrs. Annan, "Beautiful Beulah," sitting by the body of her lover, Harry Kalstedt, listening to a jazz tune on a phonograph, the record of which was splattered with blood.

She was subsequently acquitted of the crime on a plea of self defense and although she later divorced him and hurled contemptuous remarks at him, Annan remained loyal to her and spent his savings in her defense.

Today Annan found himself suspected of the murder of Mrs. Griffin, whom he said had been his "common law" wife for four years.

Note From Louisville

Investigating Mrs. Griffin's death, police found a note, signed by Ruth A. Annan, Louisville, Ky., and sent special delivery, which said:

"Dear Al: Your letter arrived today . . . Mrs. Stoll hasn't been found yet."

And while they were there a frantic feminine voice called the apartment and was heard on the phone by a policeman to say:

"Get in touch with Al. Tell him Mrs. Stoll has been released."

Three Chicago Bandits in Stolen Car Eluded Capture by a Hurried Flight Through Lee Co. Yesterday

Three Chicago bandits, driving a stolen sedan, sped away from Mendota police and armed citizens yesterday afternoon and entered Lee county. The trio were reported to have boldly entered road houses in LaSalle county, picked up slot machines, defied the proprietors of the places until the machines had been loaded, then sped away. License numbers on the car were telephoned to the Mendota police who attempted to halt the car as it sped north through that city, crossed over the Illinois Central tracks and raced on into Lee county on state route 71.

They pulled in at the Carnahan service station at Compton where they rested in their car for some time. It was almost an hour after the race through Mendota streets that word of the escape reached Compton. In the meantime, the license number ad been checked and was found to belong to a Chicago resident. A telephone to Chicago police revealed that the car had been recently stolen. About 5 o'clock last evening the strange men drove through Compton's business section and left that locality.

Alto Township Farm House and Its Contents Totally Consumed by Fire at Noon Yesterday; Wind Fans Flames

The Osborn Arne farm home, located on the late Andrew Richolson farm, about four miles northeast of Steward, was swept away by a fire at noon yesterday. The structure and contents were completely consumed in the flames which spread to every part of the house and were fanned by a strong wind.

Mrs. Arne was preparing dinner in her home and heard a crackling sound. She investigated in the upstairs rooms but found no signs of the blaze and when her attention was attracted a second time, she ran outdoors, to discover the entire roof ablaze. The Rochelle fire department was summoned and started for the Arne home, but the building and its contents were in smouldering ruins when aid arrived, so rapidly had the flames spread, fanned by the high wind. Fortunately the wind blew the flames away from the barns and outbuildings and the fire was confined solely to the house and its contents. The loss was reported to be partially covered by insurance.

Kidnaper of—eral agent posing as an express company employe. The father took the package to his daughter-in-law Monday, following instructions received in another note in which Mrs. Robinson, Jr., was named as a second intermediary.

Under Observation

Mrs. Robinson, Jr., took a train for Terre Haute, Ind. Meanwhile both Mrs. Robinson and her father-in-law were under observation by government men.

In Terre Haute, government agents hoped to be led to the place where Mrs Stoll was being held. An agent, acting as a taxicab operator, saw to it that his cab was available and convenient. She did not use it, however.

Trail Reappeared

Apparently the trail was lost there, but it reappeared yesterday in Indianapolis, where at 3:30 yesterday two women appeared at the residence of Rev. Arnold Clegg (no relation to federal agent H. H. Clegg, who carried out the Nashville investigation.

"I am Alice Stoll," said one of the women to Mrs. Clegg—a cousin of Berry Stoll—"and this is my friend."

Mrs. Stoll asked permission to call Louisville. In communication with her home, she asked that the way be cleared so she could return "sometime tonight."

Mr. Clegg agreed to take the two women to Louisville in his car.

Meanwhile the telephone call to the Stoll home here had been traced to Indianapolis (wires to the house have been frequently reported to have been tapped) so when the four started, a carload of operatives was nearby and they trailed along behind.

Simultaneously another detachment moved out from Louisville to intercept the Clegg machine.

Purvis Took Charge

At Scottsburg, Ind., the federal car from Indianapolis overhauled the Clegg machine. Melvin H. Purvis, who led the Dillinger chase for the department of justice, took charge.

He took the Cleggs to the home of relatives in Jeffersonville, Ind., and brought Mrs. Stoll back home. Mrs. Robinson was taken to a local hiding place.

The elder Robinson is generally regarded as being innocent of complicity in the crime. He is reported to have talked with his son who phoned from Indianapolis and to have urged that he drop the entire idea. A madman's laugh was the only reply. The father is being questioned in Nashville.

RACKET STRIKES BRONX

New York, Oct. 17—(AP)— The snotch racket has struck in the Bronx again.

Lewis Esposito, 23-year-old son of a wealthy junk dealer, is being held by kidnapers for $20,000 ransom.

Federal agents and police—just concluding their case against Bruno Hauptmann in the Lindbergh abduction and murder—have little to work on. They say the youth's family is too fearful of kidnapers' vengeance to cooperate.

Esposito vanished Monday, but his disappearance was not made public until yesterday.

His automobile was found abandoned last night in the Bronx, seven miles north of his home and about a mile south of Hauptmann's residence. Its proximity to the Hauptmann home, however, was not considered significant.

The youth is the son of Anthony Esposito, wealthy junk dealer. Lewis, who was engaged to be married shortly, left his house Monday evening to drive to his grandfather's home. The 83-year-old-man, also named Lewis Esposito, was the last of his kin to see him.

Sister Got Call

Two hours later Lewis' sister answered a telephone call, screamed and fainted. The voice on the wire had told her:

"We have Lewis and you won't see him again unless you pay us $20,000."

The speaker also said to await further instructions and not to notify police. Officers were called, however, and sent out a confidential alarm for Lewis' car

A second telephone call to the home, this one from a woman, came an hour after the first. The speaker ordered the brother who answered to meet her in front of a restaurant, saying she could be recognized by a small patch of adhesive tape on her face. Lewis' two brothers hastened there, but could not find the woman.

Police Inspector Henry Bruckman said the department was giving the family a free hand despite its refusal to cooperate.

FEARS DISSPELLED

Cheshire, Conn., Oct. 17—(AP)—Fears that eight-year-old Gloria Gennaro had been kidnaped were dispelled today when she appeared at school and explained she had accompanied two school mates to their home after school closed yesterday and remained overnight.

She rode back to school this morning in the town bus, unaware of the excitement in town occasioned by an all-night search of state officers and constables for her.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

M. E. MEN'S CLUB

The Men's Club of the Methodist church opened its 1934-35 season last evening with a dinner at the church. B. J. Fraser presided. The pastor offered prayer. Circle one served the lovely meal. The male quartet of the club gave the music. B. S. Schildberg was elected vice president, Henry Hubble, secretary, William Lange, treasurer and Roy Scholl, a member of the board.

The president called upon the pastor to introduce the speaker, the Reverend Charles R. Goff, pastor of the Court Street Methodist church of Rockford. Mr. Goff spoke on, "Yourself and the Will to improve." It was an unusual address unusually well delivered. One is not a mixture of one's ancestors and the past so much as one is a mosaic of those ancestors and that past, the speaker thought. Mr. Goff found in the race the will to improve. This he thought was a divine gift, and though often checked, hampered and at times defied by great and even terrible opposition could not be destroyed. He found solid ground for optimism. His illustrations were happy His illustrations were happy ones and preached a definite message. Especially thrilling was his use of his recent experiences at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. The fine audience of men hung on every word of the youthful orator, giving him a hearty ovation at the end of his speech.

President Fraser announced that Dr. John Holland of WLS will be the club's speaker November 13th, and that that occasion would be ladies night. Carl Buchner was presented as the club's program chairman and Ben Schildberg as the chairman of the music committee of the club.

After prayer by the pastor the club adjourned followed by a period of greetings and visit.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard John Costigan of Forest Hills, L. I., said they would return immediately to New York to assist in the prosecution of Lawrence Stone, 24, who police said confessed putting the body of Nancy Jean in a furnace at Mount Vernon, N. Y.

under threats to harm Hoagland and his recently married daughter Doris, was foiled by department of justice agents today with the arrest of an 18-year-old boy.

Operatives of the division of investigation of the department of justice, already busy on the Stoll kidnaping hunt, laid a trap last night that brought the youth into custody.

The prisoner, Dominick Bausano, was seized a few yards from his home in the driveway of an abandoned factory where he had directed in an extortion note that the money be left.

Federal agents said he admitted that he had planned the entire extortion by himself after he had read of Miss Hoagland's marriage Sept. 29 in the society pages of the newspapers.

Similar Stationary

The agents said Bausano showed them stationary similar to that of the note.

"If these directions are not complied with," the note read, "you and your daughter's brains will be blown out. We have men with machine guns to pick up the package."

The note was decorated with sketches of two revolvers and was signed "the blackhand gang."

Hoagland turned the note over to Melvin H. Purvis, local chief of division of investigation of the department of justice, who dispatched four heavily armed agents to the factory.

Bausano will be charged on arraignment before a United States commissioner with violation of the "Lindbergh" law, the sending of an extortion letter through the mails.

TO GIVE UP WRIGGLING

Chicago, Oct. 17—(AP)— Eliska Balatkova, 25, pretty Chicago chorus girl, woke up today to begin planning what she could do with a million dollars. Last night she went through her dance routines in a night club, a bit dazed by the news that an aunt, Mme. Marie Balatkova of Prague, Czechoslovakia, had died and left her $1,000,000. She thinks she'll give up cabaret wriggling and take up serious dramatic work.

HOW THE DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION HAS HELPED YOU

1. The DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION, under the leadership of President Roosevelt has put the farmer back on his feet. The price of corn is more than four times as high as it was in 1932. The price of wheat has more than doubled. The price of hogs is nearly twice as high.

Through the corn loan act the farmers of Illinois have had at least $17,000,000 more to spend on groceries, clothes, automobiles, machinery and other necessary commodities.

This has helped YOU. Because of the increase in farm income, business in every city, town and village in Illinois has increased. More people now have jobs. Wages are higher. Working conditions are better and YOU have more security than you had two years ago.

Through other Democratic administration projects YOUR security has been increased. Your bank account is now safe. If not your home, the home of one of your neighbors has been saved to him because of the home loan act. Your farm or the farm of one of your neighbors has been saved for him through the farm credit administration. It is easy for you to think of a dozen other things the government has done for your benefit.

These things have been done for YOU, and they have been done by a Democratic administration.

2. The DEMOCRATIC STATE ADMINISTRATION, under the leadership of Governor Henry Horner, has cut your tax bill. The taxes on real estate and personal property for State purposes have been eliminated. For the first time since Illinois became a State you are paying no State tax on your home or your farm. Look at your tax bill and you will realize that this one act has saved the real and personal property taxpayers approximately $35,000,000.

This same Democratic State administration has saved YOUR money by conducting the State government in an economical manner. In the year and a half it has been in office it has cut appropriations by more than $18,000,000.

The Democratic State administration has caused reductions in rates on gas and electricity which have saved the consumers more than $8,150,000. It has also given REAL protection to the insurance policy holders of the State.

GOD ANSWERS PRAYERS—

IF RADIO'S slim fingers can pluck a melody
From night—and toss it over a continent or sea,
If the petaled white notes of the violin
Are blown across the mountains or the city's din;
If songs, like crimson roses, are

Why should mortals wonder if God answers prayer?

Hostess to Blue Eagle Bridge Club

A happy meeting of the Blue Eagle bridge club was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Fischer last evening, Miss Eileen Farley being the hostess. High score was made by Mrs. Joseph Farley and low by Mrs. Leslie Smith. Refreshments were served from tables prettily decorated in the Hallowe'en motif.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

School Lunch Important

According to a few skeptics, the old fashioned school lunch eaten from a paper bag anywhere in the building or on the grounds is good enough. On that basis a dime novel thriller is good literature and the child is justified in hiding in the attic or the barn to do his reading. As a matter of fact, we don't believe that. Whatever may be our own pleasant memories of the secretly read thrillers of our childhood days, we prefer as parents to have our children like good literature. And we do our best to provide attractive libraries at school and in the community and at least a shelf or a reading nook in our homes.

From food comes the child's growth, energy, and strength. He works, studies, and plays on what he eats. On that score alone his nutrition deserves our closest attention. The school lunch is one of three daily meals and therefore becomes significant, as a source of nourishment. For the child's sake we can't afford to think of it as merely a "stop gap," while the child is away from home. It isn't just a picnic, any more than going to school can be regarded as a party. The school lunch shrieks its importance. It calls for planning. It demands an attractive place, and the food question deserves just as much serious consideration as any part of the child's school life.

Next week Dr. Ireland will write about "Learning at Luncheon."

Favorite Verses from Our Readers

Each day the Telegraph will print the favorite quotation of some Dixon citizen, some of whom have passed beyond. But the reading of their favorite quotation is like the laying on of benign hands, a communion with those who have gone before. Then also, we will give favorite quotations of citizens, men and women, now mingling in business and society. There is something all-revealing in this selection of a favorite quotation in prose or poetry, and some of them are most beautiful. Today's quotation is that of the late Alfred Doolittle, well known traveling salesman, who died a few years ago and whose friends were legion:

'Tis easy enough to be pleasant
When life moves like a song;
But the man worth while is the
When everything goes dead wrong.

Fall Vegetables Are Distinctive

By MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

In my time I've read poems about rosy-cheeked apples, emerald and scarlet peppers, purple eggplant, fragile herbs, and most of the other products of the garden, including the lowly potato, but I've yet to find a poet who has seized upon the good homely and not unbeautiful parsnip for inspiration. And I think the field is really a fertile one.

It is not among poets alone that this strange prejudice against the wholesome parsnip persists. Plenty of housewives turn away from it with scorn, or at least with indifference, and yet the faddiest man of my acquaintance, (from a food point of view, anyway) declares that parsnips have a delicacy of flavor unsurpassed by any other vegetable.

His favorite recipe calls for scalloping the parsnip with pineapple. And since this is vegetable day for us, let's see what we think of his favorite.

Parsnips Scalloped With Pineapple

Four good sized parsnips, 1 small pineapple, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup soup stock or water.

Scrub and scrape parsnips. Parboil fifteen minutes and cut in rounds about 1-2 inch thick. Cut pineapple in pieces of equal size and shape. Place in alternate layers in a buttered baking dish, sprinkling each layer with brown sugar and cinnamon and dotting with butter and flour rubbed together. Sprinkle with salt and pour in chicken stock or water. Bake in a moderate oven until both parsnips and pineapple are tender. Serve from baking dish. It will take about 45 minutes for the mixture ti bake.

Dutch Red Cabbage

One head red cabbage, 1 large sweet onion, 2 large tart apples, 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon black pepper, 1-2 cup rich cream.

Remove bruised or wilted outside leaves of cabbage and cut in quarters. Cut out core and chop with a knife in chopping bowl or shred on a board. Put into boiling salted water and boil five minutes. Drain. Melt butter in another sauce pan and add onion finely minced, apple pared, cored and cut in thin slices, salt, and pepper. Add cabbage and cook very slowly for thirty minutes, tossing mixture frequently to prevent burning and to cook evenly. Five minutes before ready to serve add cream.

Fried Green Tomatoes

The tomatoes must be firm and green clear through. Wash and cut out stem end. Cut in slices about 1-4 inch thick and drop into cold salt water. Two tablespoons salt to a cup of water is the proportion to use. Let stanid one hour and drain. Roll in fine dried bread crumbs. Dip each slice in egg slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon cold water and roll again in crumbs. Put three tablespoons butter or other shortening into a heavy iron frying pan and heat until sizzling hot. Put in tomato slices and cook six minutes until crisp and brown on one side. Then add another tablespoon butter and turn tomatoes. Cook about five minutes until crisp and brown on this side. Serve very hot. The trick after cooking these tomato slices is to keep an even heat under the spider that will crisp the coating without over-heating the butter. Make a cream gravy in the frying pan.

TALLER LINES FEATURE NEW CLOTHES—

Fall clothes are designed to make all figures look taller. Skirts are plain, giving a long slender line downward from the hips and the bodices sweep upward from waistlines to necks, achieving the same effect in the other direction. Tunics, for instance, add height. So do sloping shoulder lines, raglan and dolman sleeves. Even hats do their part to maintain the regal silhouette. The newest ones have exceedingly high crowns, often trimmed with feathers that stick straight upward.

SINGLE LEGISLATIGE BODY.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, who is not required to seek reelection this year, is devoting his time to promotion of a reform of the state government of Nebraska. He has sponsored a constitutional amendment by which the legislature will consist of one house instead of two, and will have membership ranging from thirty to fifty. Voters will pass upon the proposal in November.

This idea has been floating around in Nebraska for some time, not being taken seriously. It has varied in terms from a commsision plan to an assembly of twenty members. When Senator Norris finally presented a definite program it took into account a general objection from rural precincts on the point of number of assemblymen. Twenty were too few. Hence the Norris variation to take into account the popular objection.

Outside of reduction of expenses of government, which does not seem to be a matter of much concern under the powers that govern now in this country, the proposed change may not offer much more than an argument.

Time and again we have tried to correct the errors made at the polls by changing the form of government, with all the accompanying weaknesses. When we abandon popular government to rid ourselves of its weaknesses, we get government with more objectionable elements.

Changing the form usually ends in disappointment, because it was not the form that was in error. It was popular judgment of men and issues.

What is proposed in Nebraska is much the same as the change made in numerous cities from the aldermanic to the commission form of government. Quality of government in the last analysis depended upon the quality of men elected. The theory of the commission form was excellent. Its workings bore out the theory to a considerable extent, but it didn't correct the errors in judgment of the voters. Some time we try to correct such errors by changing election laws, but again we are seeking the remedy in the wrong place. Popular government always has had the weakness and always will have it.

We do not know what Senator Norris is trying to correct in Nebraska. He has a penchant for remodeling governments, and our notion is that he hopes Nebraska will adopt the plan and make such a success of it that the change will become general and eventually will be adopted by the federal government.

If Nebraska desires so to experiment, we are in favor of making that state the experimental station. Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas have been disposed to offer themselves for experimental operations and the other states have profited therefrom.

Extension of the plan to the federal government will not be so readily approved. There are definite reasons for having two houses of congress. Senator Norris' notions may have been born of his experiences. In the house of representatives he made a successful fight against what was designated as Cannonism. Then he went to the senate. After he got out of the lower house it reverted to old form. He has been unable to reform two houses at a time and make his reformations stick. He thinks one house would be better.

We have one house in the city councils. We have one house in the board of supervisors. We do not believe they offer anything superior to the bicameral legislature. The number of members in legislatures may be greater than is required, but when we undertake to change that we encounter popular opinion. That was what swung cities back from the commission form to the aldermanic form The people wanted more and closer representation.

WHEN THEY LIKE THE CONSTITUTION.

Governor Green of Rhode Island caused some communists to be herded into jail during the riots in his state, and the first thing the Reds did was to demand that their rights under the constitution be regarded.

They seem not to know that we now are in an emergency and that during an emergency the constitution is suspended. If the congress can declare an emergency and dismiss the constitution so can a state legislature. So can a governor. There really is no limit to the number of persons who can declare the constitution outmoded and unapplicable in time of emergency and thereby dismiss it, if congress can.

It is peculiar, though, how quickly these persons who sneer at our constitution immediately demand that the guarantees that are useful to them shall be stricly observed if they are thrown into jail. Then it becomes a sacred American document.

There is beginning to develop a feeling among people who have long been acquainted with the aviation industry that air racing, especially closed course racing, has outlived its usefulness.—Major James A. Doolittle, famous air racer.

If all the mothers were as good as she, it would be a good thing for America.—Constance Bennett, actress, referring to Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt suing for custody of her child.

In America, everything is topsy-turvy. The only place where there is sanity is Europe.—Louis B. Mayer, Hollywood film executive.

COMMITTEE WILL STUDY ILLINOIS RELIEF AFFAIRS

Horner Names Another Commission to Make Complete Survey

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 17—(AP)—Alarmed over the increasing and continuing cost of providing unemployment relief, Governor Horner has appointed a committee of 16 men and women to "formulate principles on the subject for our future guildance" so that Illinois may rid itself of the dole.

The committee, the governor hopes, will complete its study in time for the submission of its recommendations to the next regular session of the general assembly which convenes in January.

Unemployment relief in Illinois has cost $170,000,000 since Feb. 6, 1932. Of this sum, approximately one-third has been furnished by the state and the remainder by the federal government.

Commenting on his appointment of the committee, Horner said:

"The present necessity for continuing relief in one form or another is undeniable and at the same time the growing financial burden is becoming increasingly difficult to provide for by state taxation."

Chicagoan Heads It

The committee, he said, will in no way conflict with the work of the legislative commission which has been investigating the policies and expenditures of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission. Heading the governor's committee is Otto C. Doering of Chicago. Its membership includes downstate and Chicago manufacturers, bankers, relief workers, college professors and editors.

Horner instructed his new committee that he desires it ascertain "the extent that relief must continue in Illinois." He said that relief "as extended through the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission has been unquestionably necessary and inescapable, yet it has been our hope to get "Illinois out of the dole if possible."

It is his intention that the new committee will study the relief problem in all its phases and then make recommendations in line with the policy of "taking Illinois off the dole."

Fund Near Exhaustion

The governor noted the $30,000,000 appropriated by the legislature for relief a year ago will be exhausted in December. Voters will determine Nov. 6 whether this expenditure is to be funded by means of a bond issue paid from gasoline taxes.

Members of the governor's committee, in addition to Chairman Doering, are:

Dr. Albert Britt, president of Knox College, Galesburg; Walter J. Cummings, president Continental-Illinois National Bank & Trust Company of Chicago; Duncan C. Smith, Aluminum Ore Company, East St. Louis; Sol Kline, Chicago manufacturer; James E. Mitchell, former president of the Illinois Bankers Association, Carbondale; Amelia Sears, member of the Cook county Board of Commissioners; Rep. R. G. Soderstrom, Streator, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor; Herbert F. Perkins, Chicago manufacturer; C. V. TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The doughnuts sizzled in the fat, and shortly Dotty said, "At that, I think it's wise you bakers do the cooking. You know how!

"Now that you have most of them done, we'll start in eating. 'Twill be fun." A baker promptly answered, "Oh, my! That we can't allow!

"We have some other plans in mind, and if you tots will just be kind enough to let us carry on, we'll give you all a treat.

"Please get some sticks 'bout three feet long, and make sure that they're goo dand strong. They'll help us make a cart on which you all can have a seat."

"A cart?" said Duncy. "Will it go? Say, baker, I would like to know just how you're going to make it. There are no boards near at hand."

The baker smiled and said, "Don't fret. No big boards do we plan to get. To you it's all a mystery, but soon you'll understand."

Some of the Tinymites now had the sticks, which made thebakers glad. They poked them through the doughnuts till two sets of wheels were made. "Well," said a baker, "those are set, and now our big roll cake we'll get. Help lift it up, you Tinies. It won't break. Don't be afraid."

Upon the wheels they put the cake. "Ah ,ha !I told you we would make a cart," exclaimed a baker. "That's a dandy, you'll agree."

"You bet," said Scouty. "It looks fit, but tell me, can we ride on it?" The baker answered, "Hop aboard, my lad, and you will see!"

So Scouty, feeling right in trim, leaped on, and Dotty followed him. "It holds us," shouted Dotty. "Gee, I hope that naught goes wrong."

A baker then ran to their side. "Hang on real tight," he loudly cried. The next thing that the Tinies knew, he pushed the thing along.

(A funny pelican flies away with Duncy in the next story.)

the life situations of relief families and release them n new hope, new ambition, and new energies and provide for such energies t/ find expression," he told a joint meeting of the Western Society of Engineers and the Engineers Club of Chicago.

He recommended that the consideration of the relief problem be made an important part of any recovery planning, asserting that "it is apparent that processes of recovery now at work will be a long time in reaching families on relief."

He said the rate of recovery had not been accompanied by a corresponding increase in the relief rolls because the men being rehired are in general "the more virile, active, and intelligent workers who had not yet resorted to relief."

She attended school at West Brooklyn, graduating with the class of 1924. Helen was a faithful and devout member of St. Mary's Catholic church of West Brooklyn. She spent all her life at her home. Helen was a young lady of sterling character. She was of a genial disposition, always meeting her friends with a smile and a cheerful word. Her untimely death was a shock to her loved ones and the wide circle of friends she had made. She leaves to mourn her passing her father and mother and three brothers, Leo, Vernon and Fred.

Funeral services were held Saturday morning at 9:30 from St Mary's Catholic church at West Brooklyn where solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. D. P. Healey. The pall bearers were cousins of Helen and were: Frank and Charles Leffelman, Raymond Gehant, Joe Ege, Marvin Bernardin and LeRoy Hahn.

In loving remembrance of Helen Gehant, our dear beloved daughter. A precious one from us has gone. A voice we loved is stilled. A place is vacant in our home, which never can be filled. God in his wisdom has called the form had given here and though the body slumbers, the soul is safe in heaven.

ANNUAL STEWARD BASEBALL NIGHT WAS CELEBRATED

250 Enjoyed Banquet and Program There Last Evening

The sixth annual baseball banquet sponsored by merchants and baseball fans of Steward and vicinity was held last evening in the gymnasium of the high school at that place and was attended by about 250 persons, several from Dixon. Six years ago, a group of about 25 residents of Steward selected either the American or National league and followed their progress throughout the season. At the close of the world's series, the winners enjoyed a feed at the expense of the losers. The first two years, the annual gathering enjoyed an oyster supper, but the number of fans increased and for the past four years, the event has terminated in the serving of a sumptous banquet.

At the outset this was held in a small hall, and the number attending outgrew this location and the past two years the event had been held at the gymnasium of the high school. The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church served the delightful dinner last evening.

The gymnasium was nicely decorated in seasonal trimmings, fall foliage, pumpkins and flowers, the handiwork of Frank Hewitt, who is one of the prime moving factors of this annual event. He had spent many hours in decorating the large room, the tables and preparing the novel place cards.

Attorney Clarence E. Gardner of Rochelle presided as toastmaster after serving. In his original Gardnerian manner he called upon several of those attending, to give brief talks, confining them to two minutes each. Those who spoke were: Sterling D. Schrock, Prof. L. W. Miller, Charles K. Willett, Postmaster Thomas Kirby, Ward T. Miller, Lucian D. Hemenway, Elbert L. Fulmer, George Webber, County Judge William L. Leech, Edwin S. Rosecrans, Leo Lauer, Millard M. Fell, Vernon Smith, Walter Ortgiesen, Elmer Boltz, Prof. Thompson, Frank Hewitt and Mrs. E. A. Oakland, president of the Ladies Aid Society, which so efficiently and systematically served the fine repast.

At the close of this program the celebrants retired to Miller's hall where the remainder of the evening was spent in a social way.

VICTOR IN PITT-GOPHER GAME ON TRAIL TO TITLE

Will Have Inside of the Track to National Championship

New York, Oct. 17—(AP)—While it is too early in the season even to begin to rank teams in order of their national importance, it looks like a safe bet to say that the survivor of Saturday's clash between Pittsburgh and Minnesota will be seriously considered when it comes to awarding the season's football laurels.

On the showings thus far Pitt's Golden Panthers appear to be "tops" in the east—at least there is no other team that has tackled as much in the way of opposition as Pitt's clashes with Washington & Jefferson, West Virginia and Southern California and has remained undefeated.

Minnesota has the nomination of rival Big Ten coaches as the team to beat following decisive triumphs over North Dakota State and Nebraska.

Both Somewhat Ragged

Although both have been ragged at times, the menu seems to call for a pair of closely matched hard-charging lines with Pitt's aces, Henry Weisenbaugh and Izzy Weinstock performing behind one and the elusive "Pug" Lund, Gopher captain, behind the other. All three have shown they can do just about everything required of a back and some of their mates are good enough to press them for their laurels.

The only drawback to nominating this as a titular scrap is that Minnesota has five major games after it and Pitt four.

The imposing list of early season upsets has snatched some of the color from a group of their intersectional games Saturday that looked like "naturals" when they were scheduled and the moans of the graduate managers who had hoped for capacity crowds probably will be heard far and wide.

There are Michigan and Georgia Tech, normally leaders in the west and south, coming together at Ann Arbor with the records showing four defeats between them. Michigan has been shut out by Michigan State and Chicago. Tech beaten by Vanderbilt and Duke. The east-west struggle between Fordham and St. Mary's suffered a setback when the Galloping Gaels from Oakland, Cal., were beaten by Nevada and Fordham was barely victorious over Boston College.

Likewise Ohio State's one-point loss to Illinois took the edge off the Buckeyes' clash with Andy Kerr's Colgate team. Notre Dame, on the comeback trail after last week's triumph over Purdue, looks a bit too strong for Carnegie Tech.

LES LINDBERGH IS BEST ILLINI GROUND GAINER

Has Averaged Four and Half Yards in 50 Excursions

Champaign, Ill., Octt. 17 —(AP)—Put down Les Lindbergh as the greatest ground gainer, the most consistent runner, and the offensive workhorse of Bob Zuppke's Illini backfied. The records for the first three games which Illinois has played this year show that the blonde Swede has carried the ball exactly 50 times for a net gain of 221 yards, an average of 4 1-2 yards per try.

Running close behind Lindbergh in the matter of averages is Frank Froschauer who has taken the ball carrying burden on 24 occasions to pick up 106 yards, for an average of slightly less than 4 1-2 yards.

Bob Grieve and Crain Portman, too, can boast averages of approximately four yards for each ball toting attempt though they have seen much less service than the two leaders. Grieve's record shows a net gain of 50 yards on 12 tries while Portman has advanced 57 yards in 15 efforts.

Jack Beynon, ace of the Illinois backfield because of his unerring passes and smart field generalship has carried the all only four times for a gain of nine yards.

The biggest boosts in the Illini statistics came in the Washington and Bradley contests, however, and Froschauer was the only man to maintain a four yard average against Ohio State. Lindbergh, against the Buckeyes, averaged only two yards on 16 excursions.

PURDUE HAS HAD BAD BREAKS BUT IS NOT WHIPPED

Coach Kizer Issued a Warning to Boilermakers' Foes

Chicago, Oct., 17 —(AP)— There s a great amount of almost fiendish glee in the hearts of the underdog rooters of the Big Ten over the fall of Michigan and the rise of Chicago, but somehow there is a feeling of sympathy for Purdue, a scourge of the football downtrodden for five long years.

Although Noble Kizer and his Boilermaker crew still can come back to win the Big Ten championship, their once bright prospects have been blighted by enough tough luck to make the average team toss in the towel. Their great scoring combination, Duane Purvis and Jim Carter has been broken up by injuries to Purvis and two of their finest linemen are on the shelf.

Freakish Accident

Purvis was the victim of one of the most freakish accident in football. During early season, while practicing the kicks that made him famous last fall, his cleats caught in the ground and the muscles of his right ankle were pulled badly. Since he can't kick now, he no longer can be paired with Carter as Carter can't boot 'em and it is necessary to have a player who can. The weakened ankle also has slowed him up considerably although Carter, even without his running mate, gained 110 yards in 21 attempts in the losing games against Rice and Notre Dame.

Kizer's line, sprinkled with inexperienced sophomores, suffered hard blows later. Ed Skoronski, 203 pound center, was lost with a badly wrenched back and George Dennis star guard and bellwether of the green line with Skoronski, broke a bone in his right hand three days before the Notre Dame game, giving the Boilermakers almost an exclusive sophomore line.

Kizer In Warning

But Kizer today issued a warning to Purdue's Big Ten foes — Wisconsin, Chicago, Iowa and Indiana.

"We've been playing on the installment plan and may have to for a couple more weeks," said the Purdue coach, "but we're not licked yet. We are just getting tough."

Purvis may get into the Wisconsin game, but chances are that he will grace the sidelines until the Carnegie Tech game next week. He was injured again in the Notre Dame battle.

For the most part, Big Ten teams were polishing up their plays and working on new formations today. Bob Zuppke promised his Illinois team an entire new set of plays for Michigan; Indiana began building a defense to stop Jay Berwanger, Chicago's battering ram; Ohio State got new plays for Colgate; Coach Bernie Bierman drove his Minnesota Gophers hard in long workouts to get more offensive power; Iowa was suffering with a growing injury list; Northwestern headed back home with a big shakeup in sight; Wisconsin built its defense works, and Chicago took things easy.

BALTIMORE TO ERECT BUST OF GREAT BAMBINO

Public Subscription to Finance Memorial to Homerun King

Baltimore, Oct. 17 —(AP)— Baltimore is preparing to honor Babe Ruth, her baseball playing son, by erecting a bust of him.

Paul E. Burke, president of the Maryland Amateur Athletic Association, announced plans for raising funds for the memorial last evening.

He said he thought it fitting that the city where the homerun slugger started his career should mark the end of that career with a lasting tribute.

Ruth was "discovered" by Jack Dunn while a member of St. Marys Industrial school team here. Dunn, manager and owner of the Orioles, signed up the young slugger.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson, after a conference with Burke, has agreed to select a site for the bust. The mayor heads the committee selected to raise the funds.

"Dizzy" Dean, star pitcher of the world's champion St Louis Cardinals, and voted the most valuable player in the National League, many, with his pitching brother Paul, start the contributions.

The Deans play in an exhibition game here tonight. Burke said he hoped they would be the first contributors.

Appendicitis Ends Chas. Berry's Trip

Valley City, N. D, Oct. 17—(AP)—Charles Berry, catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, was recovering in a hospital here today from an appendicitis operation.

Berry, enroute to the west with other major league baseball players for a tour of the Orient, was stricken early yesterday and removed from a train here. He is expected to remain in the hospital a week or ten days before returning to his home at Phillipsburg, N. J.

DIZZY DEAN IS MOST VALUABLE NATIONAL STAR

Is Voted Annual Honor by Baseball Writers Assn. Committee

Chicago, Oct. 17 —(AP)— And still they call him "Dizzy."

He's the most valuable player in the National League.

He's the idol of St. Louis.

He's the talk of the baseball world.

He's making thousands of dollars for himself, cashing in on his fame.

And he's having a lot of fun doing it all.

He was christened Jerome Herman Dean. They called him Jerome when he was picking cotton for less than a dollar a day, but when he began to skyrocket across the baseball horizon they started calling him "Dizzy."

A few million hard working people wouldn't mind being called "Dizzy" if they could duplicate some of his deeds or pocket half of his cash.

Near Perfect Score

The "most valuable player" award of the National League is the latest honor to fall to the pitching sensation of the championship St. Louis Cardinals. The dizzy one came within two points of a perfect score in the selectiotn by a committee of eight representing the Baseball Writers' Association of America, which votes the honorary award each year, getting 78 votes out of a possible 80. His margin was 28 points over Paul Waner, Pittsburgh outfielder, who finished with 50 points. Joe Medwick of the Giants was third with 39, and Travis Jackson, New York next with 39.

Dizzy succeeds Carl Hubbell, ace of the Giant pitching staff, who obtained only 16 votes. Other leaders were Melvin Ott, Giants, 37; James Collins, St. Louis, 32; Bill Terry, Giants, 30; Curt Davis Philadelphia, 18; Paul Dean, St Louis, 16; and Hal Schumacher New York, 16. Twenty-five players received votes in the balloting.

Some Achievements

Some of Dizzy's achievements in the 1934 campaign:

Won 30 games and lost 7 in the regular season; won two world series games; led the National League in strikeouts for the third successive year, fanning 198 batsmen; pitched 311 innings; participated in 51 Cardinal games, either as pitcher, pinch batter, or base runner; batted .246; and beat the Giants ix times.

And still they call him "Dizzy."

BRITISH TENNIS LEADER PRAISES CALIFORNIA LAD

Leighton Crawford is Impressed With Don Budge's Playing

New York, Oct. 17—(AP)—When John Bull trots out his Davis Cup team for defense of the international tennis trophy next summer Fred Perry still will be in England's lineup.

You can take that from no less an authority than Leighton Crawford, a member of the British cup selection committee, who returned from the Pacific coast, where he talked with Perry.

Crawford scouted stories and suggestions that Perry plans to turn professional this year.

"I wouldn't say that Fred never will become a professional," Crawford said. "It is my opinion, however that he won't join Vines and Tilden and the others for some time to come, if at all.

Enjoys Popularity

"Perry enjoys his popularity with his countrymen in England and I dare say he wouldn't be very popular if he turned professional.

"He has England's lofty place in the tennis world in his heart and you can bet that he'll be playing on the Davis Cup team next summer. It's funny how these rumors pop up from time to time."

Crawford went to the Pacific coast as manager of a team of three English girls—Betty Nuthall, Katherine Stammers and Freda James.

Aside from being impressed with what he considered the promise of superiority of California net players over the rest of the world, he visualizes in Donald Budge, red-haired coast youngster, the makings of another Fred Perry.

"Budge has good and sound all-around stroke production and has a first class match temperament," Crawford said. "I think he is your best future prospect and has the makings of a world beater.

EX-PRESIDENT HOOVER MAY BE INSULL WITNESS

May be Called to Tell of Urging Business to Aid Recovery

Federal Court, Chicago, Oct. 17—(AP)—With government prosecutors guarding the testimony intently, three witnesses described to the Insull mail fraud jury Tuesday precisely how two letters got unto the mail.

This relatively simple matter was scrutinized with such detail because mailing them—they contained annual reports of Samuel Insull Corporation Securities Company of Chicago, a hundred million bubble—constituted two of the 25 crimes charged against Insull and his 16 codefendants.

Washington Flexner, proprietor of the Lincoln Printing Company, testified that his company printed the reports, running off 35,000 of the corporation's 1930 report and 35,000 more in 1931.

Mailing Traced

Charles A. Mackey, Flexner's superintendent, traced the letters to Charles G. Black, proprietor of a mailing concern, who testified that they were trucked to the post office. They were sent out in envelopes supplied and addressed, he said, by the corporation itself.

Rumors that Samuel Insull, Sr., would use as part of his defense the confident statements which the Hoover administration made in 1930 about business conditions grew during the slow session to a report that the former president himself would be subpoenaed.

Because friends of Insull have long declared he spent large sums to make re-employment, after the White House conference on that subject toward the end of the Hoover administration, it has been expected that the Washington statements would be used as background for a claim that Insull failed to realize how bad business conditions were late in 1929.

This "victim of the depression" defense has never been announced by Insull's attorney. Insull's own statement, when he was returned from Europe to stand trial in Chicago, was that he was not greatly swayed, at the start of the depression, by optimistic opinions from Washington.

ADDITIONAL CHARGES

Washington, Oct. 17—(AP)—The trade commission received evidence Tuesday that Insull management wrecked subsidiary companies in effort to save its major concerns.

A summary of evidence gathered by commission examiners was put into the record. It covered their long study of the Insull affairs and repeated much of the evidence now being presented in Chicago.

In addition, it dealt with the affairs of the Electric Management & Engineering Corporation, an engineering service for the National Electric Power Company, a major Insull company.

The holding company borrowed large sums from Electric Management, the summary said, "and the facts presented show how the Insull management, in its frantic effort to salvage National Electric Power Company by making use of the cash and credit resources of that company's subsidiaries, involved those subsidiaries in the catastrophe."

"Until the operations set forth have plunged Electric Management & Engineering Corporation into bankruptcy that overwhelmed National Electric Power Company, it had been a very profitable investment to the parent company," it added.

RECORD OF MRS. STOLL'S KIDNAPER IS REVEALED

Described as Being Unable to Resist Temptation, Expert Says

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 17—(AP)—Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., accused as the kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, was once described as "one of those types that cannot resist temptation of doing wrong and committing crimes."

This characterization was made by Dr. E. W. Cocke, state commissioner of institutions, in a letter written Sept. 4, 1930, while he was superintendent of the Western State hospital at Bolivar. Young Robinson had been confined to the hospital for three months and had been given into the care of his father, T. H. Robinson, against the advice of Dr. Cocke.

Robinson had been sent to the Central State hospital for the insane in the spring of 1929 when he was accused of two jewel robberies and his counsel entered a plea of insanity. The following year he was transferred to the Western State hospital.

According to the hospital records, Robinson admitted committing the robberies, the loot of which totalled more than $6,000. The records state that the youth, then 22, prepared fictitious warrants, posed as a deputy sheriff and, under pretense of searching for liquor, visited two Nashville homes, leaving with diamonds, watches, rings and pins, much of which was recovered from him after his arrest.

Hospital Record

Records of the hospital show the following information about young Robinson:

Born May 5, 1907;

He attended Vanderbilt University for two years, studying law, "but suddenly lost interest, began to cut classes, then stopped school and got married."

This marriage was described in the hospital records as causing severe "disappointment" and the "shock and misery" resulting from it were given as the "supposed cause of insanity." He obtained a divorce and married again.

While attending college Robinson dropped out of his fraternity "because he thought the boys were not square with him—wouldn't pay their debts—and were dumbells."

Once a regular church goer, he "lost interest" and quit going, saying at one time that "if he should die suddenly he believes he would go to hell," the records state.

Knew Right From Wrong

Dr. Cocke, in a letter to the then commissioner of institutions dated September 4, 1930 said of Robinson: "He knows right from wrong, as any normal person would, but he is just one of those types that cannot resist temptation of doing wrong and committing crimes."

Robinson, following his incarceration in the hospitals for the insane, worked for about a year in Louisville as an empolye of the Stoll Refining Company, headed by C. C. Stoll, father-in-law of the kidnap victim.

He obtained the job, as attendant in a filling station, after his father, a business acquaintance of C. C. Stoll, asked for a chance for his son to "get a new start in life" away from Nashville and "Nashville associates."

Robinson was then about 23, and he remained in the employment of the company for approximately a year. It was not known why he quit the work.

Early this year he was arrested on a charge of robbing a young woman of jewelry while she was motoring with him, but the case was dropped on recommendation of the prosecutor, an acquittal being ordered.

Chief of Detectives Elkin Lewis said another warrant charging robbery of jewelry is outstanding against Robinson, but that officers had been unable to find him to serve it.

ROOSEVELT IS SOLE ISSUE IN PARTY CAMPAIGN

Orators Have Dropped All Else to Urge Support to FDR

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 17—(AP)—Democratic campaigners in Illinois have dropped everything else to join in a chorus of praise for President Roosevelt and his new deal.

The Republicnas, striving to recoup 1932 losses, on the other hand have criticized the policies of the Democratic administrations at Washington and Springfield, with special attention to the constitution.

The issues will be decided at the election Nov. 6.

Democratic candidates, for state and legislative offices, including Chicago leaders are asking for votes on the ground that Roosevelt would be helped by the defeat of all Republicans. They have wholeheartedly endorsed the new deal.

The GOP platform denounced everything Democratic. Leaders of the minority party have been more pointed in their direct criticism of the President than the national committee under Chairman Henry P. Fletcher.

Recently, however, the Republicans approved the farm objectives of the AAA, although advocating changes in its administration.

HAUPTMANN IS ORDERED GIVEN TO NEW JERSEY

Plea for Writ to Prevent Extradition Denied Last Evening

New York, Oct. 17 —(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann is a step closer today to trial for the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

His plea against extradition rejected, Hauptmann's only hope of preventing his removal to New Jersey now lies in an appeal to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. His counsel, James M. Fawcett, plans to file an appeal immedately.

The unsmiling carpenter's fight against extradition was dealt a crushing blow when Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer dismissed the writ of habeas corpus sought by Fawcett in an attempt to prevent Hauptmann's removal to New Jersey.

Announcing his decision, Justice Hammer said:

"My conclusion is that the relator Hauptmann) has failed to make out a case and that he has not established beyond a reasonable doubt that he was not in the state of New Jersey the night the crime alleged was committed."

Stay Is Granted

After the decision was announced, Fawcett obtained a stay of execution until 4 P. M. Friday in order to bring his appeal before the appellate division. It is considered likely that action on the appeal will be taken by that time.

Hauptmann remains in the Bronx county jail where he has been held since his arrest nearly a month ago. If the final barrier to his extradition is removed, he will be taken immediately to Flemington, N. J., where his trial will take place. New Jersey authorities were ready to transfer Hauptmann across the Hudson last night if Justice Hammer had not granted the stay.

The decision blasting Hauptman's hope of evading trial on the murder charge came at a night session following Hauptmann's appearance on the stand, in which he denied, calmly and deliberately, that he had written the ransom notes received by Col. Lindbergh after the baby was kidnaped.

Denied Writing Notes

Earlier Albert S. Osborn, handwriting expert, had testified the ransom notes were in the handwriting of Hauptmann, and Attorey General David T. Witentz of New Jersey had asserted the notes "constitute Hauptmann's confession that he was in New Jersey and that he took the baby."

The stolid German stowaway was called to the stand by his counsel and given the ransom notes. Fawcett, telling him to examine the notes carefully, asked Hauptmann whether they were in his handwriting.

Slowly Hauptmann read each note. Not a word was said. For nine minutes he scrutinized the collection. Then he said:

"It is not my handwriting. It is the first time I over saw them."

Hauptmann denied also that he was in New Jersey during the first four months of 1932.

FEDERAL AGENTS TELL STORY OF 6 DAY STOLL HUNT

Knew From First Kidnaper Was Former Asylum Inmate

Washington, Oct. 17—(AP)—The story of a six-day quest to free Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll from the hands of an insane and brutal kidnaper was told today by department of justice men.

The ace detectives, who have struck blow after blow at the kidnap racket, were confident that they would soon seize Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., 27-year-old former attorney's clerk, whom they named as the kidnaper.

"Additional arrests are expected in the near future," the department also announced, but it declined to name the other suspects.

Agents made clear that almost from the very first day of the case they felt certain that Robinson was the kidnaper. They had no doubt they would catch him—but they were driven to a terrific pace by the fear that Mrs. Stoll would be killed before they could reach their goal.

Cause of Fears

To account for this fear, they pointed to the fact that the kidnaper slugged her with an iron pipe before carrying her off from her home. They said Robinson had been accused of robbery and of attempted assaults on young girls in or near Nashville, Tenn. It was after one of the robbery charges were brought against him that he spent a period in the state insane asylum at Nashville.

As signs of Robinson's feeble intellect, officials pointed to fingerprints left on the ransom letter and the fact that the note named "T. H. Robinson" as intermediary. This is the name of the youth's father. The elder Robinson's address in Nashville was given in the letter, making it doubly easy for the agents to begin their work of tracing.

"The ransom letter," said a statement released by William Stanley, assistant to the attorney general, "was obtained by special agents and immediately forwarded to the technical laboratory of the department of justice in Washington.

Found Finger Prints

"Latent fingerprints, developed on the letter, were pronounced by fingerprint experts to be identical with the fingerprints of T. H. Robinson, Jr.

"Known specimens of the handwriting of T. H. Robinson, Jr. were also obtained by special agents, and, on comparison by the handwriting experts of the technical laboratory, were concluded to be positively identical with the fragmentary hand printing contained in the ransom letter."

Although the elder Robinson first was named as intermediary, later messages from the kidnaper selected Mrs Frances Robinson, wife of the hunted youth, to fill that role. She was taken into cutoody last night because, according to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of investigators, she passed some of the $50,000 ransom paid by Berry Stoll, wealthy husband of the kidnaped woman.

Payment of the ransom to Mrs. Robinson by her father-in-law was described by the department of justice statement in these words:

Transfer of Ransom

"On October 15, Berry V. Stoll received a letter, dated at Indianapolis, Oct. 14, in the handwriting of of his kidnaped wife, through W. S. Speed, the father of the victim, stating in effect that the kidnaper believed the intermediary T. H. Robinson was being watched so that he could not deliver the ransom money to his daughter-in-law who, in turn, would deliver the money to the kidnaper, and further that the kidnaper would not accept any person other than this daughter-in-law of the intermediary to deliver the money.

"In accordanc with these instructions, the ransom money was paid over by the Stoll family to Mrs. Francis Robinson, the wife of T. H. Robinson, Jr., and daughter-in-law of the intermediary, during the afternoon of October 15, and during the evening of the same date she proceeded directly to Indianapolis.

"Through the investigative activity of special agents of the division of investigation, United States department of justice, Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll was located on October 16 at approximately 9 P. M., at Scottsboro, Ind., where she was taken under the protection of division agents. At the time Mrs. Stoll was located she was accompanied by Mrs. Frances Robinson, wife of T. H. Robinsno, Jr., and was in the company of Rev. Arnold Clegg and Mrs. Arnold Clegg.

"A search is being made over a wide area by a large number of special agents of the division of investigation, United States department of justice, for T. H. Robinson, Jr. Additional arrests are expected in the near future."

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

©1934 NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When DAN BLEEKER, publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously killed he determines to employ SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

Morden had been assigned to learn all he could about FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reported Cathay had been arrested. Later it was proven that the man arrested, giving the name of Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY BRIGGS, was an impostor. The Blade published a retraction.

Then Morden is found dead and a few hours later comes news that Cathay is dead — possibly poisoned.

Sidney Griff undertakes the case. He calls on Cathay's physicians and then goes to see CHARLES FISHER, Cathay's friend and lawyer. Fisher asks Griff who is employing him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

GRIFF did not answer the lawyer but continued smiling—a smile that told nothing.

"Was it perhaps," Fisher asked, "that is, if it's a fair question, the district attorney of the county or someone connected with the police force who employed you?"

"The question," said Griff, "is fair enough."

There was a moment of silence.

"The answer?" Fisher purred in his most suave voice.

"Oh, the answer," Griff said. "That would be manifestly unfair. It's perfectly fair for you, representing your clients, to ask a question, but you understand we all of us have our professional obligations, counselor."

"I see. I see," Fisher remarked, toying with a pencil on his desk nervously. "That Dr. Cooper should be prosecuted for criminal malfeasance. He disregarded his professional duties and obligations and made an erroneous diagnosis, which was subsequently made public."

"What was the diagnosis he made?" Griff asked.

"I would prefer not to discuss it in view of my connections with the family," Fisher said firmly.

"I see," Griff told him. "There isn't any chance that his diagnosis was right, is there?"

"Not one chance in a million. Not one chance in ten million," Fisher said emphatically. "His diagnosis is a shining example of just how much harm a doctor can do when he shoots off his face. It's an insult to Mrs. Cathay."

"Indeed," said Griff. "How is Mrs. Cathay affected by it?"

"Well," Fisher said, "I'm not going to discuss it, but you can use your imagination, Mr. Griff. Naturally, if a man is poisoned, one naturally suspects the young widow who will be beneficiary under the estate, to the tune of several million dollars. . . . That is, you understand, I'm simply commenting now upon the popular trend of thought, the idle street car gossip, the widespread comments of sewing circles."

"And Dr. Cooper has now abandoned that diagnosis?" Griff asked.

"Oh, certainly. In fact, he never made any such diagnosis. He simply said that the symptoms were similar to . . ."

CHARLES FISHER clamped his lips together and shook his head. He smiled tolerantly at the criminologist.

"I'm afraid, Mr. Griff," he said, "you'll be drawing me out before I know it. I think, perhaps, you're rather an adroit cross-examiner."

Griff laughed.

"Well," he said, "I talked with Dr. Cooper this morning, but I couldn't draw him out any."

"Dr Cooper," said Fisher grimly, "will probably find himself called before the medical board to explain his rather strange statements. Particularly in view of the fact that he made those statements in the presence of a newspaper reporter."

Griff seemed completely uninterested in the future of Dr. Cooper.

"I would," he said, "like to see Mrs. Cathay."

"It's impossible," Fisher said. "She's prostrated. She isn't seeing anyone. She talked with me over the telephone and her voice was so choked and broken I could hardly understand what she said."

"That," asked Griff, "is the only way you knew she was prostrated?"

Fisher's eyes grew hard. He said, "Don't misunderstand me. I'm her attorney. I'm also her friend. I was her husband's friend. Her husband's generosity was responsible for my success. I worked for Frank Cathay when he was in South Africa. Then he sold out his interests and came here. He sent for me to join him. He put up the money which put me through law school. He loaned me the money which established me in my law practice. I would cheerfully have died for him. I'd do anything for his widow. I say she's prostrated and I know what I'm talking about. Cathay's death was entirely due to natural causes. Those causes were brought about by a dastardly libel which was perpetrated by a metropolitan newspaper."

"The newspaper published a retraction," Griff said.

"IN a way it was a retraction," Fisher admitted. "It was skillfully worded. It wasn't an apology —not by a long ways. The newspaper admitted the mistake of the previous story, however, but it did it under the guise of publishing an additional item of news. Whatever retraction there was, was merely incidental and by way of background for a new story."

"Will you," asked the criminologist, his eyes fastened intently upon the lawyer's lips, "claim that it did not constitute a retraction?"

"Certainly not," Fisher said. "In the first place, I believe that the action died when Cathay died, which, of course, was a break for the newspaper. However, the matter had been amicably adjusted prior to Cathay's death. I handled the adjustment personally."

Griff raised his eyebrows in interrogation.

"Can you tell me about that?" he asked.

"Unfortunately," said Fisher, "I am not in a position to disclose the exact terms of the settlement. I may assure you, however, that they were in every way satisfactory to Mr. Cathay. However, the settlement came too late."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that the shock had prostrated Cathay. He was a very sick man from the moment the slanderous attack upon his character was made by the newspaper."

"When was the settlement made?" Griff asked.

"On Thursday afternoon."

"Why was it made?" Griff asked.

"BECAUSE," Fisher said with feeling, "I could see that my client was on the verge of a complete collapse. I took Mrs. Cathay with me. We went to the Palace Hotel in the city and got in touch with the paper's publisher. We reached an amicable settlement of the entire matter upon terms which were quite satisfactory to all concerned. I returned to make a report to Mr. Cathay. It was too late. He was unconscious. He never regained consciousness until he died. He died without knowing that his good name had been vindicated and the newspaper had published a retraction."

"He was then," said Griff, "sick when you left for the city?"

"Certainly. That's what I am telling you."

"And that was one of the reasons you made such a hurried trip?"

"Yes," Fisher said, "I don't mind admitting that was one of the reasons for rushing the matter to a conclusion, rather than going through the formality of filing suit and negotiating a compromise afterwards."

"Was there any other reason for expediting matters?" Griff asked.

Fisher toyed with the lead pencil. His eyes turned away from the criminologist's face.

"I don't know," he said slowly, "as there is any reason why I should tell you. I take it that you might, however, get the information from the newspaper if I didn't give it to you."

"I don't want you to betray any professional confidence," Griff said.

Fisher whirled to face him.

"That damnable newspaper," he said, "as soon as it learned that its slanderous attack upon my client would probably furnish the basis for a libel suit, sent a reporter to this city. A reporter who made no secret of the fact that he was about to engage in a most extended investigation to ascertain facts which would be embarrassing to my client. Facts which would be sufficiently embarrassing to blacken Mr. Cathay's reputation if they were brought out in court and skillfully presented with all of the inuendo and sneering insinuations which could be commanded by some clever attorney."

"Did that fact have a tendency to expedite the settlement?" Griff asked.

"It had a tendency to put my client on his death bed," Fisher snapped.

REGULAR TRANS-OCEAN FLIGHTS COMING—LINDY

Lone Eagle Urges Government Adopts Definite Policy

Washington, Oct. 17 — (AP) — The belief that regular transoceanic flights are "not far away" was expressed Tuesday to the president's aviation commission by Charles A. Lindbergh.

Giving his views to the board which is forming a definite aviation policy for the government, the first man who made a solo trans-Atlantic flight said he thought flying boats should be used at the start because of economy but "primarily because of safety."

Lindbergh explained that the flying boats in case of forced landing could descend without damage to the ships or to the personnel. He added that would give a tremendous psychological boost to the undertaking.

Subsidies Necessary

The flier spoke in a quiet tone, leaning forward eagerly as he expounded his views and frequently putting his hands in his coat pockets or rubbing his chin.

Lindbergh told the commission he thought government subsidies to air lines would be necessary for a few years longer but that the major transport lines ought within a reasonable time be self-supporting. Smaller lines, however, he added would require government aid for a longer period.

He told the commission that the "blacklist" of former air line executive officers constituted one of the "most discouraging factors" in aviation

Brown's Plan Best

He was referring to the post-office department ruling that no officers of the old airmail carriers might retain office under the reorganization which accompanied the contract letting after the first contracts were cancelled.

The "blacklist" was imposed upon the executives Postmaster General Farley said had participated in a "spoils conference" to divide up all air mail contracts.

The conference was arranged by former Postmaster General Brown, and Lindbergh said he considered the allocation of transcontinental lines established by Brown the best solution thus far.

U. S Is Ahead

Lindbergh told the commission American aviation was ahead of all other countries.

"On the whole," he said, "I think it is materially ahead of the rest of the world, particularly in commercial aviation. I don't think there is any doubt about that."

Lindbergh declined to discuss the primary and secondary air mail routes established by the postoffice department. The new air mail law provides that no company should hold contracts on more than one primary or two secondary routes.

Lindbergh said such decisions "might very well come under a permanent commission," but that he had not studied the present set-up.

Ready to Testify

"I'm here to defend my sister against the things that have been said about her," Lady Furness (above), the twin of Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, announced when she reached New York after her ocean journey to help her sister regain custody of 10-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt. She refused to reveal the nature of her testimony, however.

Millions Plunge Oil King Into Marriage Woe

His overnight rise from rags to riches brought tears and wretchedness to C. M. "Dad" Joiner, left, discoverer in 1930 of the vast East Texas oil field, the 74-year-old multi-millionaire "wildcatter" told a jury in Dallas, Tex., the other day, fighting the suit of Mrs. Lydia Joiner, extreme right, his first wife and mother of his five children, to set aside a property settlement of $500 a month and to regain a wife's half of his fabulous riches. Joiner's marriage to his pretty secretary, Miss Dea England, center, immediately after obtaining a Mexican divorce from his first wife in 1930, is attacked by Joiner's first mate, backed by their children. Both sides claimed victory after the jury's verdict on special issues and announced intention of filing motions for judgment.

Living Our Everyday Lives

RIDICULOUS

(By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton.)

Lord Byron said that ridicule is the only weapon that does not rust in the English climate. Indeed it does not have time to rust; it is used too often and with such deadly effect.

Like all the rest of mankind, the English are singularly sensitive to ridicule. Their natural staidness, joined with their keen sense of humor, tempts them to employ the weapon of ridicule as a means of social censure; and they know how to use it.

Mankind is intolerant of the unusual—not one of us but is mortally afraid of appearing different from our fellows We always tend to make a joke of originality or any marked departure from the average. Men would rather be wicked than ridiculous.

Yet nothing is more ridiculous than ridicule, and at times it does great injury and evil. Anything can be ridiculed—it has killed many things that deserved to live. Real merit has often been laughed almost to death before being understood and honored.

It has been said that every great idea passes through three stages of progress—ridicule, angry opposition, and final acceptance; and the first stage is the hardest. First we make fun of it, then we fight it, and nally we say we have always believed it.

No doubt ridicule is good medicine for pomposity and pretentiousness and humbug, but it is harmful to gifted natures that lack self-confidence. No man is at his best when he is held cheap; he can hardly help falling below his true level if he is the butt of bitter scorn.

Let us be wise enough to encourage, not scoff at, experimental variations from the normal stupidity. It is a good rule never to visit ridicule upon any sincere man, or any honest idea—we may do more mischief than we know or can heal.

At the same time it is well to practice birth-control in the matter of new ideas — the mortality among them is very great. Only truth can triumph over ridicule and win out!

Daily Health Talk

THE ARTIFICIAL WET-NURSE

The secretion of adequate quantities of breast milk for the nourishment of the new born and young infant is of the utmost value and importance to the survival, health and development of the young.

For no matter how great the progress we make in compounding formuli for artificial feeding, human milk still is and probably will always remain the ideal food for the infant. The phenomenon of milk secretion has therefore been a major interest in medicine. But the function of lactation, nursing, has only recently been clarified

The function of loctation depend upon the interplay of a series of complicated mechanisms. Thus, the mammary gland (the breast) first enlarged during puberty and develops to maturity under the successive stimulations of the menstrual cycle. In this cycle there is a specific gland secretion liberated which stimulates and promotes the development of the breast glands, ducts, etc.

The secretion of milk, however, occurs only (naturally) following parturition, i. e., childbirth, and the act of secretion is apparently accomplished through the agency of a specific hormone. This hormone, called prolactin, is apparently secreted by the front or anterior portion of the pituitary gland, the gland of internal secretion located at the base of the brain.

Recent studies promise valuable clinical developments. Our added knowledge of the normal development of the breast may offer us new methods for the treatment of what is known as cystic disease of the breast. This condition is apparently essentially an imperfection in the development of the breast due to an inadequacy in the hormone or hormones which stimulate breast development.

It may be possible, too, in the near future to stimulate the secretion of adequate supplies of milk following childbirth by the administration of prolactin.
